She popped up. "Come on," she said. "The people walking backwards?"

"I know--"

"The oldllady walking backwards?"

"Yen--"

"Am I supposed to be freaked out that there's an old lady walking backwards?"

"I don't know."

"And the old lady starts to smash her head through all those windows." She shook her head. "It's The Happening, though. It's this scary thing and, you never know, an old lady might start to walk backwards."

"Look," I said. "I don't expect you to do anything, I don't hold you to the rules that I hold myself to. And it's not that I'm having pity on this poor, poor, well-meaning director just because the whole world hates him right now."

"So, time has passed and you've changed."

"That's right."

"You're a better person now," she said. "You're seeing things clearly now."

"I can really say it now, can't I?"

"The trees!" she said. "And she's pregnant. Isn't that awesome? Life begins."

"I think that was an homage," I said.

"Oh, really?"

K said that it was an

"Yeah, to films that end with the lady getting pregnant." homege to

"I need to stay away from that genre."

6-movies, beause I

"You didn't like The Sixth Sense, right?"

as Regularity

"No, I thought it was pretty good."

"So you thought it was a quality film, but it just fright- someone ened you."

"Yeah, it had some jumpy parts."

I said, "I didn't like The Sixth Sense, but I kind of liked See Lady in the Water."

"Don't remember that one," she said. "Did we watch that one?"

The said of the